Article 10. Age Discrimination

§ 11075. Definitions.

As used in this article the following definitions of terms apply, unless the context in which they are used indicates otherwise:

(b) “Basis of age” or “ground of age” refers to age over 40.

(c) “Collective bargaining agreement” refers to any collective bargaining agreement between an employer and a labor organization that is in writing.

(d) “Employer” refers to all employers, public and private, as defined in Government Code Section 12926.

(e) “Employment benefit” refers to employment benefit as defined in section 11008(g). It also includes a workplace free of harassment as defined in section 11019(b) of Subchapter 2.

(f) “Normal retirement date or NRD” refers to one of the following dates:

(1) for employees participating in a private employee pension plan regulated under the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, the NRD refers to the time a plan participant reaches normal retirement age under the plan or refers to the later of either the time a plan participant reaches 65 or the 10th anniversary of the time a plan participant commenced participation in the plan;

(2) for employees not described under (1) whose employers have a written retirement policy or whose employers are parties to a collective bargaining agreement that specifies retirement practices, the NRD refers to the normal retirement time or age specified in such a policy or agreement; or

(3) for employees not described under either (1) or (2) the NRD refers to the last calendar day of the month in which an employee reaches his or her 70th birthday.

§ 11076. Establishing Age Discrimination.

(a) Employers. Discrimination on the basis of age may be established by showing that a job applicant's or employee's age over 40 was considered in the denial of employment or an employment benefit. The presumption of discrimination may also be established by showing disparate treatment of applicants or employees over the age of 40, unless such disparate treatment is tied to a legitimate overriding business necessity such that the treatment is necessary to the safe and efficient operation of the business and effectively fulfills the business purpose it is supposed to serve. The practice may still be impermissible where it is shown that an alternative practice would have accomplished the business purpose equally well with a lesser discriminatory impact. The mere preference to retain lower paid workers, alone, is insufficient to negate the presumption.

(b) Employment Agencies, Labor Organizations, and Apprenticeship Training Programs in Which the State Participates. Discrimination on the basis of age may be established against employment agencies, labor organizations, and apprenticeship training programs in which the state participates upon a showing that they have engaged in recruitment, screening, advertising, training, job referral, placement or similar activities that discriminate against an individual or individuals over 40.

§ 11078. Pre-Employment Practices.

(a) Recruitment and Advertising.

(1) Recruitment. The provisions of section 11016(a) are applicable and are incorporated by reference herein.

Generally, during recruitment it is unlawful for employers to refuse to consider applicants because they are over 40 years of age. Examples of unlawful recruitment requirements are maximum experience limitations, the requirement that candidates be “digital natives” (an individual who grew up using technology from an early age), or the requirement that candidates maintain a college-affiliated email address. However, it is lawful for an employer to participate in established recruitment programs with high schools, colleges, universities and trade schools. It is also lawful for employers to utilize temporary hiring programs directed at youth, even though such programs traditionally provide disproportionately few applicants who are over 40. However, exclusive screening and hiring of applicants provided through the above recruitment or temporary programs will constitute discrimination on the basis of age if the programs are used to evade the Act's prohibition against age discrimination.

(2) Advertising. It is unlawful for an employer to either express a preference for individuals under 40 or to express a limitation against individuals over 40 when advertising employment opportunities by any means such as the media, employment agencies, and job announcements. Note: Authority cited: Section 12935(a), Government Code. Reference: Sections 12941 and 12942, Government Code.

§ 11079. Advertisements, Pre-Employment Inquiries, Interviews and Applications.

(a) Advertisements. Advertisements for employment that are drafted in such a way as to limit or deter employment of people over 40 are unlawful. Examples of prohibited advertisements include those that designate a preferred applicant age range or that include terms such as young, college student, recent college graduate, boy, girl, or others terms that imply youth.

(b) Pre-Employment Inquiries. Pre-employment inquiries that would result in the direct or indirect identification of persons on the basis of age are unlawful. Examples of prohibited inquiries are requests for date of birth or requests for graduation dates, excepting where age is bona fide occupational qualification for the position at issue. This provision applies to oral and written inquiries and interviews. (See section 11016(b), which is applicable and incorporated by reference herein.)

Pre-employment inquiries that result in the identification of persons on the basis of age shall not be unlawful when made for purposes of applicable reporting requirements or to maintain applicant flow data provided that the inquiries are made in a manner consistent with Section 11013 (and particularly subsection (b)) of Article 1.

(c) Applications. It is discrimination on the basis of age for an employer or other covered entity to reject or refuse to seriously and fairly consider the application form, pre-employment questionnaire, oral application or the oral or written inquiry of an individual because such individual is over 40. (See section 11016(c), which is applicable and incorporated by reference herein.)

An application's request for information such as the applicant's date of birth or age is not, in itself, unlawful. However, the application's request for such information may tend to deter older applicants or otherwise indicate discrimination against applicants who are over 40. Employment applications that are request such information will be closely scrutinized to assure the request is for a permissible purpose and not for an unlawful purpose.

This section prohibits the use of online job sites that require entry of age in order to reach and complete an application or the use of drop-down menus that contain age-based cut-off dates or utilize automated selection criteria or algorithms that have the effect of screening out older applicants.
